

CHELSEA WINTER

Location: Taranaki

Chelsea Winter, best-selling author and celebrated cook, is a beloved figure in New Zealand through her achievable and innovative recipes, such as the viral Lockdown Loaf, Ten Second Aioli, and Macho Nachos. Her approachable style has endeared her to everyday home cooks and foodies alike, making her a household name across the country.

Chelsea's venture into plant-based cuisine with her bestselling cookbook, Supergood, underscores her commitment to sustainability and wellness. The book, a bestseller in 2020, earned a gold award at the Gourmand World Cookbook Awards and has been pivotal in promoting a balanced, sustainable lifestyle accessible to people with all dietary preferences.

As a speaker, Chelsea brings her culinary experiences into broader discussions on business and personal development, focusing on resilience, innovation, and sustainability. Her ability to draw meaningful insights from her own professional transitions provides valuable lessons for audiences across business, sustainability and wellness conferences and events.

Known for her direct and engaging speaking style, Chelsea offers practical advice and real-world solutions, making her presentations not only motivational but also actionable. She has a unique ability to connect with diverse audiences, from corporate executives and budding entrepreneurs to food lovers, inspiring them to embrace change and pursue innovation.

Beyond her culinary achievements, Chelsea has successfully extended her influence into the homeware industry with a line of kitchenware that reflects her emphasis on quality and functionality. This move highlights her business acumen and her skill in maintaining relevance and impact across different markets.

Chelsea's positive influence and dynamic presence make her an exceptional choice for a wide range of speaking engagements. Her combination of culinary expertise and insightful business perspectives ensures that her audiences are both inspired and equipped with practical strategies for success. Whether addressing corporate teams, participating in culinary workshops, or leading wellness seminars, Chelsea's messages of positivity, balance, and motivation resonate deeply, making her a sought-after speaker in many environments.
