Introducing Nick Honeyman: A Culinary Maestro with a Kiwi-French Fusion

C'est délicieux! South African-born Nick Honeyman is the mastermind behind French cuisine with a unique Kiwi twist. As the owner of Auckland's Number One restaurant on TripAdvisor, Nick's culinary creations are a symphony of warmth, precision, and honesty, blending his extensive knowledge with artistic flair and the finest local produce.

Nick's culinary journey began in Australia, where he honed his skills as a chef before embarking on a life-changing adventure to France. Immersed in the world of Michelin-starred restaurants, he absorbed the essence of French cuisine and culture, fueling his passion for culinary excellence.

Returning to New Zealand, Nick's career reached new heights as an executive chef at prestigious establishments. Eventually, he fulfilled his dream by opening his acclaimed restaurant, Paris Butter, a Metro magazine Top 50 and Worlds50best-listed culinary gem. Not stopping there, he also captivated audiences with his own TV show, "The Best of New Zealand with Nick Honeyman."

Beyond the kitchen, Nick's personal growth was profoundly influenced by his relationship with his wife, Sina, and their beautiful daughters. Through her thoughtful questions and unwavering support, Nick found a balance and calmness that transformed his approach to cooking and life.

Fatherhood became his driving force, inspiring him to give back to others and learn from their experiences. Escaping the constraints of the traditional restaurant system, Nick championed a new model, valuing work-life balance and the well-being of his team. He nurtures a close-knit, motivated crew that collaborates, learns, and grows together.

Passionate about movement and well-being, Nick's team enjoys regular workouts with Commonwealth Games gymnast Mark Holyoake, fostering improved posture and teamwork in the restaurant. They even have the "Saturday Night Project," a creative challenge that elevates their skills and sparks fresh culinary ideas.
